Employee Benefits Security Administration

Dear Employee Benefits Security Administration:

Thank you for proposing rules that require the disclosure of 401(k) fees.

I am worried that these fees could eat into my retirement savings without my knowledge and leave me inadequately prepared for retirement. Below are recommendations that I think would make the 401(k) fee regulations even stronger.

Many employees do not have internet access, so no one should be required to rely on the Internet to learn important information about their 401(k) plans. Information about 401(k) fees should not be sent by e-mail, unless employees specifically ask to receive the information electronically.

I urge you to strengthen the fee disclosure regulations to ensure that employees receive adequate information about the hidden costs of their 401(k) plans to help them prepare for retirement.

Sincerely,

Jackie Boschok
