General Comment

I would like to say that I am opposed to any regulation of the way I plan for retirement. I have been actively investing, saving and planning for my retirement for more than twenty years. I do not base my planning on advice from brokers, financial consultants or anyone else for that matter. I have successfully amassed enough money to retire entirely on my own decisions and I do not trust outside advice. Regulations by the government could very well put my retirement into jeopardy and furthermore I do not need the government's assistance. In fact I am sure I would be much better off without it. Thank you for hearing my plea.
