Thank you for allowing me to comment on disability. I have been in business since 1988. I constantly see perfectly healthy people apply for disability and get it. I am certainly for helping those that need it, but just because you are not in perfect health doesn't mean you can't do some work. People are constantly faking health issues, there needs to be more thorough checking before approving the benefits.

Also, there are those with partial disability, that need the help but should also be able to work to subsidize their income as they cannot live on the partial disability.

Help those who really need help!
