Dear Sir or Madam:

The recently announced regulation that contraception and sterilisation be covered by private health insurance with no co-pay is immoral, unjust, and unconstitutional. The HHS has a moral obligation to bring its rules and regulations into conformity with the U.S. Constitution and the natural law. Please rescind this evil regulation, or at the very least insert a valid and constitutional conscience exemption -- one that conforms with the First Amendment's guarantee of free exercise of religion. If HHS does not do so, it will inevitably have hell to pay from the people and eventually from God, and I'd like it very much if you could be spared all that grief.

Sincerely,
Jared Olar
