General Comment

It is simply absurd that any exception should be made for religious organizations. An employer has no right to determine what kind of healthcare a person receives. It would be like saying the employees should not be allowed to purchase pork if their employer was jewish or muslim or fish on lent if catholic. Preventing individuals from obtaining reproductive care will result in more deaths of adults and more abortions. Quite frankly the United Conference of Catholic bishops should be concerned with their priests sexual lives which are literally criminal in many instances.
