General Comment

I do not want the government dictating which funds my retirement savings are allowed to be invested in based on non-financial requirements. As long as a company is engaged in a legal business, is financially viable, and is allowed to be traded on a US exchange, the US government does not need to be adding requirements to investment selections based on the political flavor of the month. ESG, CRT and any other political/social requirements are an infringement on my rights and returns as an investor, and have no place in the administration of my future retirement benefits.
